COUNTY GOVERNMENT

Placer County was created in 1851, just two years after the discovery of gold brought thousands of 49ers across the Sierra in search of fortune. The county took its name from the Spanish word for sand and gravel deposits that contain gold.

Today, Placer County has more than 320,000 residents, and a county government with more than 20 departments and approximately 3,000 employees.

County government touches the lives of residents in many ways, whether they live in local cities or unincorporated areas.

Placer County has five incorporated cities- Roseville, Rocklin, Lincoln, Auburn and Colfax- and an incorporated town, Loomis. Each is responsible for providing municipal services that typically include police, fire protection, road construction, parks, and land-use planning.

The county provides many of these same municipal services for residents who live in unincorporated areas as diverse as Granite Bay, the foothills beyond Auburn and the high Sierra communities of North Lake Tahoe.

The county also offers many services that cities do not and makes them available to everyone in the county, including people who live within cities. Many health services fall into that category, as do restaurant inspections, aid to needy families, support for veterans, child-support services, child protective services and child-abuse prevention.

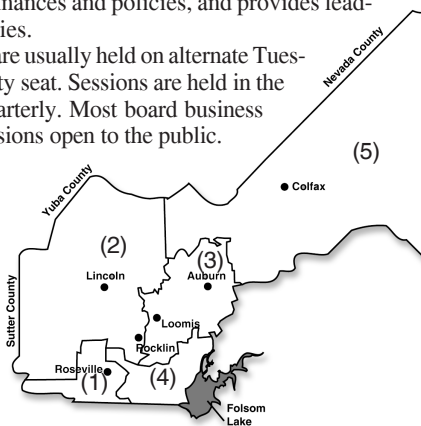

Other departments that offer services countywide include:

- The District Attorney;
- Assessor;
- Auditor-Controller;
- Treasurer-tax collector;
- Clerk-Recorder-Registrar of Voters; and
- Probation Department.

Another example is the Sheriff's Department, which operates a jail in North Auburn that houses suspects arrested by sheriff's deputies and city police officers.

The Placer County Board of Supervisors is the governing body responsible for managing county government. It adopts the county's annual budgets, makes important land-use decisions, adopts county ordinances and policies, and provides leadership on regional agencies.

The board's meetings are usually held on alternate Tuesdays in Auburn, the county seat. Sessions are held in the eastern Sierra at least quarterly. Most board business must be conducted in sessions open to the public.

SERVES EVERYONE

Board members hire the county executive officer to carry out the decisions they make and to be responsible for county government's day-to-day operations.

Voters also elect several other officials to four-year terms, including the:

- Assessor;
- Auditor-Controller;
- County Clerk-Recorder-Registrar;
- District Attorney;
- Sheriff-Coroner-Marshal; and
- Treasurer-Tax Collector.

Placer County has a wide variety of appointed advisory bodies, including 13 municipal advisory councils. Known as MACs, the councils serve unincorporated communities throughout the county. They are charged with gathering public comment and making recommendations to the Board of Supervisors on a range of topics, including land use, public works, recreation, law enforcement and public health and safety.

The public is welcome at board and advisory body meetings. The MACs and other advisory bodies offer members of the public regular, informal forums to stay informed about county issues, and have their voices heard on issues that concern them.

Board of Supervisors bi-weekly meetings, as well as archived videos of past meetings, can now be viewed via the Internet, and can be accessed with dial-up or broadband connections. For a direct link to the Board of Supervisors video page, go online to www.placer.ca.gov/bos/BOS\_video.aspx.
